Tire Plant Codes

DOT issues 65 new plant codes in last year

By Bruce Davis

Tire Business staff

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Department of Transportation issued 65 new DOT plant identification codes in the past year for tire factories worldwide, including five for plants in the U.S. and 35 for plants in China.

Tire manufacturers wishing to sell tires intended for use on U.S. roadways must have a DOT code for each plant, and that code must be molded into the sidewalls of each such tire, according to DOT regulations.

The alphanumeric code on the tire sidewall indicates the tire maker certifies tires bearing the mark meet all U.S. Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard requirements. The manufacturer is not required to test the tires, but if they are sold in the U.S., they are subject to random testing by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA), with penalties assessed if the tires fail to be in compliance with federal standards.

Tires found not in compliance will be subject to recall, and the manufacturer is subject to civil penalties of up to $6,000 per tire — up to a maximum of $17.4 million for any related series of violations, according to agency documents.

The new codes bring to 1,040 the number of plants worldwide with at least one DOT code.

Fourteen of the new plant codes are for multinational tire companies, including:

- Bridgestone Corp., 1E2 for its Bridgestone do Brazil Industrial e Comercio Ltda. subsidiary's plant in Sao Paulo, Brazil.

Tire Business was unable to find reliable information on eight other companies with new codes:

- Hebei Wanda Tyre Co. Ltd.; Jiangsu Hua'an Tyre Technology Co. Ltd.; Keich International Tyre Co. Ltd.; Qingdao Ailite Rubber Co. Ltd.; Shandong Dreamaker Tire Co. Ltd.; Shandong Kupo Tire Co. Ltd.; Shanghai Baosteel Wheels Co. Ltd.; and Weihai Huayang Rubber Technology Branch Co.

Of the 1,040-plus codes listed, about 80 are for plants that are closed or no longer make tires, while another 30 or so are for retread plants, factories that don't make tires or make only bicycle tires and/or tubes.

The number of codes issued by the DOT essentially doubled in 2015-16 when the DOT began implementing a three-place alpha-numeric code system to replace the two-place identity in use for the past several decades.

The agency opted for this change out of concern the two-place system didn't offer enough possibilities to accommodate the anticipated demand for new codes.

In all but a few cases, the DOT simply added a "1" in front of the existing code to create the new code. The exceptions were those codes that included "G," "S" or "Q" due to potential for misreading a G or an S for a 2 or Q for 0, for example.

A list of manufacturers' DOT codes

Editor's note:

This listing is compiled by Tire Business from the Department of Transportation's list of DOT codes, current as of year-end 2017. The DOT list was cross-checked with Tire Business' Global Tire Report databases to ensure codes are matched accurately with each plant's current owner/operator.

This list excludes codes assigned to plants that are closed or are assigned to facilities that don't make new pneumatic tires (such as retread plants or research and development centers).

The DOT has issued a second set of 3-place alpha/numeric codes, covering every existing plant location in its database, in line with regulations issued in April 2015 by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The 2-place codes are to be phased out no later than 2025. All new factories are being issued 3-place codes only.

A complete list of all codes is available for purchase from Tire Business' Data Store. The list is organized alphabetically and numerically; the numbers-first and numbers-only codes follow the letters-first codes.

* indicates there is more than one code for that particular plant.
